

Management System Standard (BS 9901:2022)

BS 9901 Foundation Training Course

Course overview

- Atlas Certification is a technical committee member for the writing and development of the new BS 9901 standard which is designed to improve standards within the built environment in the United Kingdom.
- This course is developed to give foundation awareness about the additional requirements it places on ISO 9001 the international standard for quality management.

This course is for:

- Organisations operating within the built environment
- Personnel working within or supporting the built environment
- Management system consultants

This course covers:

- Overview of BS 9901 and how it links to ISO 9001
- Extended requirements and guidance
- Preparing for BS 9901 certification

Course length:

1 day

Training format:

On-site training facility

What to expect

why you should use Atlas Certification...

Our trainers are also field auditors so that they can share operational and real-life experiences during the training course.

This is an online virtual training course which includes live training presentation and facilitation as well as delegate participation throughout.

We strive to continually improve the quality of our training courses by always reacting positively to delegate feedback.

It is important that we provide accessible learning at competitive prices.

To find out more and to make a booking, visit: www.atlascertification.com